Typical of the ornate decorations is this massive, gold-plated pulpit, supported by a series of hand-carved wooden figures, each colorfully painted.

Negroes Try to Enter Pine Bluff School

PINE BLUFF (AP)—A Negro father today tried to enroll his five children in an all-white school at the edge of this southeast Arkansas town. He was turned away by school officials who said their plans did not include integration during the 1956-57 school year.

School officials said William Dove, a Pine Bluff foundry worker, was at Dollarway school early this morning with his children.

He left with his children after a talk in the superintendent's office with Mrs. Hazel Watkins, superintendent of the school, and Lee Parham, president of the School Board.

George Howard, an attorney who is head of the Pine Bluff chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, said the move was "not sponsored officially or unofficially by the NAACP."

Mrs. Watkins said Dove asked to enroll his children immediately. She said she answered him that the school "just hadn't planned" for integration and was anxious to avoid any incidents such as those that occurred at Clinton, Tenn., recently.

Pine Bluff, located in the southeast Arkansas delta country has a high percentage of Negro residents.

Dove's attempt was the first such action here. Negro groups backed by the NAACP tried without success to gain admittance in all-white schools at Little Rock and at Walnut Ridge at mid-term last year.

Dollarway School Board, which operates independently of the Pine Bluff School District, is working to elaborate, other than to say the plan did not call for mixing of the races in classrooms in the 1956-57 school year.

Dove's children ranged in age from 6 to 14. They now attend a Negro school which Mrs. Watkins described as having the newest building in the district and the same scholarship rating as Dollarway.

A school bus—also described by Mrs. Watkins as the newest in the district—stops in front of Dove's house daily, Mrs. Watkins said.

She said Dove gave no reasons for wanting to transfer his children.

13 Trapped Ships Leave the Canal

PORT SAID, Egypt (AP)—Thirteen ships of seven nations finally were on their way out of the Suez Canal today, more than two months after the British-French invasion and Egyptian counter-measures bottled them up in the waterway.

Wrecks still obstructing the canal made their passage north to Port Said a tricky navigation problem. Col. Mahmoud Yunes, managing director of the Egyptian Suez Canal Authority, estimated it might take until Thursday to get all 13 out of the coalesces under the job of moving the trapped freighters and tankers, spurring efforts from the U. N. salvage fleet clearing the ships and bridges which Egypt sank in the canal after British and French warplanes began to bombard Oct. 31.

allies to supply the Israelis, which they did. He et tanks go to Saudi Arabia.

Last Feb. 4, Dulles said his country "does not exclude the possibility of arms sales" to Israel and the Arab states "when it will preserve peace." Arms for pro-Western countries in the area, like Turkey and Iraq, may preserve peace.

But what assurance will the Eisenhower administration want from other Middle Eastern nations that any arms they get will be used only for defense or to prevent rebellion He didn't say.

Arkansas 4-H'ers Have Good Year

Three Arkansas 4-H Club members have completed a very satisfactory year in their major project work by winning state honors and valuable awards. Their 4-H records of accomplishment were judged by the Extension Service of the University of Arkansas which directs the 4-H programs. Their reward was a week's trip to the National 4-H Club Congress held recently in Chicago, and were among the 1200 delegates honored.

For best performance in the 4-H Boys' Agricultural program, Jesse Duckett, 15, of Hope was named state winner. In addition to gaining a broader knowledge of agricultural practices, he studied in others a pride and respect for agriculture.

Throughout his five years in 4-H work Jesse's projects were best in beef and soil conservation. He made 10 exhibits, gave one demonstration, and won several prizes, awards and ribbons.

Jesse appeared on radio and television regarding 4-H work. He has served as Club president. The local 4-H leader is Mrs. William Duckett.

Donor of his trip is International Harvester, which has supported 4-H work for more than 36 years.

Safety first, last and always is the motto of Patricia Dudley, 16, of Swifton. By participating in the national 4-H Safety program, this 16 year old girl assumed a responsibility to make the farm, community, and the nation a safer place in which to work and play.

Patricia's main project for eight years has been safety. She

1957 Promises to Be a Very Memorable Year

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—A glance in our cloudy crystal ball at what lies ahead in 1957 shows one thing clearly:

It will be the most memorable year since 1956!

The forecast is for a fast, fabulous, fantastic, frenzied, frustrating 12 months full of much folly and funderol—a year formidable to the wise fatal to the foolish.

Now is the time to lay in a good supply of vitamin pills. You'll need 'em by the handful to fortify you during the fateful coming days.

In terms of common sense and understanding, the foreign situation will become more foreign than ever. The greatest problem on the international scene will be how to keep the cold war in the freezer.

The greatest threat to world peace will come from inside the Soviet colossus, as it slanders itself anew in a deadly game of "Russian roulette," each seeking to grab ultimate power.

A measure of the seriousness of the deepening World crisis will be the fact the French will topple only two Cabinets.

Other forecasts, some not as many as they sound:

Anglo-American amity will increase, keyed by British declarations of a "forgive and forget policy." The declarations will be made just before the start of the annual rush of American tourists to Europe. However, European hotel rates will rise — to help pay for all that winter oil bought from the United States.

A new atmosphere of good will will pervade television, with Walter Winchell and Steve Allen taking turns emceeing for Ed Sullivan during his vacation.

Lassie and Rin-Tin-Tin will wed in the greatest Hollywood marriage since Doug Fairbanks signed up Mary Pickford. The marriage will break up within three months, with both Lassie and Rin-Tin-Tin saying they are still the best of friends and each blaming the split-up on "caver troubles."

More and more Americans will try to get rich quick in the stock market — and more stock brokers actually will get rich.

General Electric and AT & T. will engage in a bitter verbal duel over which has the most widows and school teachers among its stockholders.

The outlook in other fields:

POLITICS—The South will develop a real two-party system — one for national elections, one for state elections.

BUSINESS—Big business will get bigger, small business will get lonelier.

CONGRESS—It will star 86 new and separate investigations, each headed by a senator or congressman hoping his inquiry will make him a presidential possibility.

WHITE HOUSE—Every Republican who is invited there during the year will look around with an eye to how she'd like to rearrange the furniture in 1961.

CONSTRUCTION—An inventor

will come up with a new accordion-type garage guaranteed to stretch enough to cover even two 1957 motor cars.

SPORTS—After winning another World Series, Manager Casey Stengel of the New York Yankees will retire to head a program to teach gymnastics to American Olympic athletes. Prayday will announce it has discovered that an obscure 67-year-old Russian athlete named Ivan Gladovitchsky actually broke the four-minute mile in 1859 by covering the distance in 3:49 while wearing a snow suit.

MEDICINE—A new wonder drug will be announced for people to take who feel good and wonder what's wrong with them. A sure preventive for the common cold will be found at least—in the form of a government law that anyone who catches one will have to pay a tax on it.

That's about all the crystal ball shows now for 1957, except for the more flat prediction:

There will be no major snowslides in Florida. If I'm wrong, let me know.

Merit System Funds to Children Hospital

LITTLE ROCK (UP)—The money the three Arkansas Merit System Council members were to receive for conducting the hearing into the Dr. Frances Brennecke case has been turned over to the Arkansas Children's Hospital.

Council members Raymond Rebsamen, J. C. Mitchell and John Collins, all of Little Rock, made the present of more than $350.

The council upheld Dr. Brennecke's dismissal as director of the Welfare Department's crippled children's division.

Violence in State Leaves 21 Dead

By The Associated Press

At least 21 persons died violently in Arkansas during the week that ended Sunday midnight.

Traffic accidents claimed 11 lives. Five traffic deaths occurred yesterday and Saturday.

Four persons lost their lives in fires two by asphyxiation and one by drowning. There were three slayings.

Harmon Summers 71, of Bono, near Jonesboro, died yesterday in a fire which swept the house where he lived alone. Police say Summers apparently threw kerosene on a stove and the fuel exploded.

Two Negro women were killed yesterday when the car in which they were riding overturned several times on a curve of U. S. Highway 82 about seven miles west of El Dorado.

The victims were identified as Mrs. Annie Mae Oliver 33, and Lillie Pearl Lowe, 26, both of El Dorado. Three other persons were injured in the accident.

Separate traffic accidents near Little Rock resulted in two deaths Saturday night.

Eugene Kinney about 36, of North Little Rock, died when his car crashed into a utility pole on a U. S. Highway 67 curve about six miles south of Jacksonville.

J. L. Ramsey, 38, of Little Rock, was killed and his wife was injured when their car left U. S. Highway 167 and knocked down four pine trees about 11 miles south of Little Rock.

A retired Monette farmer died in a collision of two cars on state Highway 13 5 about four miles south of Caraway. The victim was 71-year-old Alford Gault.

Middle East Plan Still Very Vague

By JAMES MARLOW

Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Eisenhower administration, faced with the necessity of taking some kind of leadership in the Middle East where the British and French have been discredited, has acted dramatically but vaguely.

The President went before Congress Saturday with what has been called a program but which is really an outline for a program. And, for the most part, it was not new.

Its vagueness raised questions which may keep the Russians guessing. The questions will also keep Congress and the public guessing until Eisenhower's aides answer some of them.

Nevertheless, since action is needed at this time, and since some action seems better than drifting, Congress will probably approve some of what Eisenhower asked. Time and events will show whether his judgment was good or bad.

This country has given the Middle East economic aid. Eisenhower asked Congress to increase it. But how it will be used he didn't say. At this time he probably doesn't know since it isn't clear what Middle Eastern nation wants it or would accept it.

He told Congress he wants to give Middle Eastern countries military assistance — arms — and this idea is not new although Secretary of State Dulles has been herring and having for months about giving that area arms.

He held off giving Egyptian President Nasser arms until Nasser got them from Russia. He wouldn't sell arms to Israel but left the door open for American

Practical Nurses to Oppose Change

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—The Arkansas State Practical Nurses Association says it will oppose a Registered Nurses Association proposal to remove its representation on the state Board of Nurse Examiners.

Mrs. Georgia Lee Gebhardt, executive director of the practical nurses' organization, said Saturday her group would support a bill to create a separate board for the licensing of practical nurses.

Practical nurses contend their job status would be reduced under Registered Nurse Association proposals.

Fires Take a Heavy Toll in Arkansas

By The Associated Press

Weekend fires in the northeast Arkansas city of Jonesboro and the nearby communities of Cash and Bono took one life indirectly caused three injuries and resulted in estimated total damages of at least $20,000.

A 16-year-old girl, peering through the window of a neighboring house in flames at Bono yesterday, saw the "badly burned body of a man."

Sheriff Lonnie Cooper said the body recovered from the ruins of the 3-room house was that of Hannon Summers, 71, who lived alone.

Kerosene which Summers apparently threw on a hot stove exploded, Cooper said.

The girl, Reba Joe Neal, said she saw Summers' body through the window. She said her father William Neal, tried unsuccessfully to enter the house.

Three fires raged in downtown districts of Jonesboro and Cash yesterday and Saturday night. It was not known how they started.

Flames swept four buildings at Cash yesterday morning, destroying one-third of the small business district, including a theater, warehouse and service station. Total loss was estimated by the owner at $20,000.

Bucket brigades at Cash were aided by firemen from Jonesboro, Walnut Ridge and Newport.

Jonesboro firemen earlier had been poking in the ruins of two fires that occurred in their city Saturday night with a total loss of more than $100,000.

They had first fought flames in a 2-story brick building. Then a second fire broke out shortly afterwards in a similar structure a half block away.

Three businesses were destroyed and six others damaged by both fires. A 5 and 10 cent store, office and equipment company and barbershop were total losses.

Three firemen from nearby Marked Tree were injured slightly on the way to Jonesboro in a collision involving four automobiles and the Marked Tree fire truck.

They were identified as Assistant Fire Chief Lamar Kyle, Curtis Teague and William Sonny Buck.

Walnut Ridge and Paragould also supplied fire units for Jonesboro.

The first bridge across the Arkansas River at Little Rock was completed in 1873.

FBI but at the same time documents fully its magnificent record of public service.

It is a report long overdue—one that should do much to clear away any mistaken mistrust of the FBI, a mistrust for which in at least some small measure the FBI's own secrecy is to blame.

The FBI emerges not so much an organization of superdeaths as it does a closely knit group of intelligent, hard-working men who share a fantastic loyalty, a dedicated purpose, and a discipline that any arm could be proud of. "Hoover is the FBI," says Whitehead. He makes it clear the reason Hoover has held his top role so long—he has served under five presidents—is precisely because he took the FBI out of partisan politics and fought to keep it out.

The FBI's success in catching all kinds of criminals ranging from kidnapers to bankrobbers, from spies to Communists, is backgrounded with enough sensational cases to make a dozen movies.

Whitehead also cites many little-known facts about the FBI, such as:

Its agents are taught to fire a gun with either hand, and one of their slogans is "Never shoot while running."

That FBI men even before World War II trained U. S. Marines in hand-to-hand fighting.

That only one FBI agent—and that was back in the lush days of prohibition—ever had to be fired for taking a bribe.

That, although most of its agents could earn twice as much money outside the service, the FBI in 1955 had a monthly turnover of less than one-half of one per cent, compared with 5.3 per cent for private industry.

Will the FBI ever turn into a national police in a forward, Hoover himself disclaims any such goal for the FBI, and adds:

"There is never any doubt within the FBI that the homegrown law enforcement agency must ever be in the forefront of crime control."

Can the FBI turn into "another Gestapo?" Whitehead cites the record to show the steadily increasing role played by the FBI in protecting civil liberties, concludes it could degenerate into a Gestapo-like organization only if it became a political tool under a dictator government in which the normal checks and balances were destroyed.

ointing out that the FBI is "only 1 of 1 federal agencies shaving investigative staffs with specific responsibilities for enforcement of federal laws and national security," he concludes:

"But it is inconceivable that all these restraints could be corrupted or eliminated."

Michael Todd Makes Impact on Hollywood

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD D.M. No outsider has ever hit Hollywood with the impact of Michael Todd.

The nerve of the guy! He never produced a picture before in his life. So he drops a few million of his own dough into a film called "Around the World in 80 Days" and makes it the biggest hit in years.

Not only is it doing smash business wherever it has opened, it is also being named best picture of the year by such august bodies as the New York Film Critics Circle, the National Board of Review. It is certain to be a leading favorite in the Oscar race. Some nerve! But then nerve has always been Todd's long suit. That's why he's such a successful snowman.

The admiration for Todd's showmanship is illustrated by a remark attributed to Sam Goldwyn: that the film industry has been saved three times by outside forces—sound, CinemaScope and Mike Todd.

It might be stretching a point to say that Todd has saved the industry, but he certainly has given it new life and hope. He has that important element in film making—enthusiasm—what Hollywood producers used to have in

Civil Rights Backers See Eventual Win

By JOHN CHADWICK

WASHINGTON (UP)—Senate supporters of civil rights proposals said today they believe such legislation may be passed by Congress this year despite defeat of a move to curb filibusters.

The Senate voted 55-38 last night to kill the move to change Senate rules and make it easier to halt filibusters—or endless debate—against civil rights bills or other measures. The vote crossed party lines.

Sen. Humphrey (D-Min.) said, "We almost doubled our vote over 1955," when a similar effort was defeated 70-21. Humphrey said there is a "good chance" the Senate rules still may be changed this year and that civil rights bills could be enacted.

The battle centered around efforts of a coalition of Northern and Western senators, both Democrats and Republicans, to change a Senate rule that requires the vote of 64 senators to shut off debate. This same rule bars any limitation on debate of proposals to change the Senate rules.

Backers of the move aimed at gaining adoption of new Senate rules by majority vote argued that the present system gives a small group of senators veto power.

But Southerners, who have used the filibuster tactic in past years to block civil rights legislation, contended the issue transcended civil rights. They said it involved the traditional freedom of debate in the Senate.

Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas and Republican Senate Leader Knowland of California teamed in opposition to the rules change move. They argued that "legislative turmoil," as Johnson put it, would result if the Senate accepted the idea of the Northern-Western coalition that new rules may be adopted at the opening of a Congress. They supported the view that the Senate is a continuing body and that its rules carry over.

The issue was decided, for the present at least, when the Senate voted to table a motion by Sen. Anderson (D-NM), leader of the coalition, to take up consideration of new rules.

On that vote, 27 Democrats and 28 Republicans voted to table. They were opposed by 21 Democrats and 17 Republicans.

Two Men Hold Up Service Station

NORTH LITTLE ROCK (UP)—Two armed white men held up a service station here early today and escaped with about $150.

Vernon Hooser, an attendant for the Savings Oil Co., told police the men shoved a revolver in his face and forced him to open the cash register. He said they then forced him to hand over his wallet and looked him in a restroom.

Hooser said the men apparently were afraid. He said he did not see a car, and heard no one leave the station after the robbery.

The laster days. Some of them are content to rest around their capital gains and swimming pools.

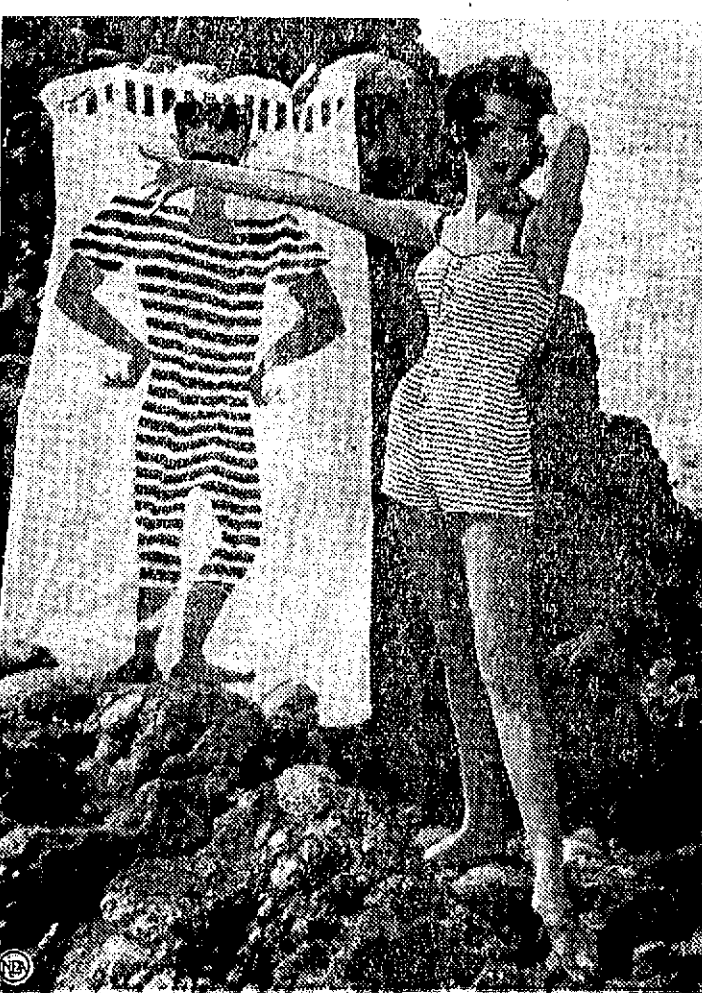

Not Todd. When I talked to him recently via phone to New York, he was full of plans.

"Going to Europe soon," he reported. "I've got some people to see over there and then I'll decide about my next project. I've also got to arrange for the foreign openings of 'Around the World.' It'll be showing in 24 major cities abroad."

He added that the picture will be playing in 31 American cities in the next few weeks.

Fiance Plays Footie—With Married Ex-Gal

Dear Dorothy Dix: Before my steady and I met, he had been engaged to another girl. They broke up and he began going with me. Lately he's been seeing this other girl, who is now married. He has given her expensive gifts and has accepted presents from her.

her, but the more I talk, the more he dates her. We're saving our money in a joint account and are supposed to be married this summer. Would it do any good to talk to the girl?

Joan: Don't you think it's about time you stopped wasting your breath talking, and did something—such as refusing to play second fiddle?

There's no place for a nice girl in this messy setup. Your friend is not only being disloyal to you, but is promoting a rift in another home. Get out of the picture before you become front-page news. And be sure to get your money out of that joint account.

Dear Dorothy Dix: Although my husband's sisters are married, and well off, he keeps slipping them money without (so he thinks) my knowledge. I never have money for church, charities, clothes or amusements.

SHELLEY
Dear Shelley: Drag the situation out into the open. Tell your husband, and the sisters, that you need his support more than the rest of the family does. After all, charity begins at home.

Dear Dorothy Dix: Ronnie and I went together for a year, then had a big quarrel. I don't even remember what caused it. When we meet, I try to talk to him but he gives me the cold shoulder. Friends say I hurt him so he's trying to hurt me back.

BEA
Bea: You might plant yourself in Ronnie's path and say with sweet insistence, "Don't you think we're acting silly? We might at least talk to each other." A surprise attack will probably work.

Dear Dorothy Dix: The women in our neighborhood take turns serving coffee each morning. One of the girls makes terrible coffee, so weak the rest of us can't drink it. We've dropped hints, but to no avail.

COFFEE CLUB
Dear Coffee Club: You have my sympathy. Weak coffee fails for strong talk—this is no time for hints!

Either the lady doesn't know how to make a strong brew, or she's too budget-conscious. Show her how to make coffee properly, or persuade her the few cents saved isn't worth the loss of friendship.

and said "Military strength might protect the Middle East for a while but 'could not solve the basic economic problems' of the backward nations."

Turkish Premier Adnan Menderes, in an interview with the Milan newspaper Corriere Della Sera, said Turkey greeted the doctrine "with the greatest satisfaction." But he warned the situation is still very dangerous because of the situation in Syria, Egypt's attitude and the Israel question.

In Damascus, Syrian official quarters called the President's "official declaration of cold war by the United States in the Middle East." But they welcomed Eisenhower's statement of U. S. support for independence.

In Valparaiso the government organ Al Bombonilla said in the first semi-official comment "We Arnos are no roadways for others." The newspaper Al Ahkbar said Eisenhower's speech "cast doubt on the United Nations' ability to solve international problems" and that the doctrine would "create an illegitimate machinery alongside the U.N."

Hungary Irked by Return to Dictatorship

By JACK MEEHAN

BUDAPEST, Hungary (UP)—Anger stirred through the Hungarian people today in the electric atmosphere that followed announcement of the nation's return to the chains of a "dictatorship of the proletariat."

Soviet tanks appeared before Budapest's public buildings again to enforce the announcement by Dictator-Premier Janos Kadar that aroused new fears of a nationwide purge.

The Kadar announcement, all but crushed the last hope of Hungarian patriots for political freedom. Any optimism that Hungary would become another Poland vanished.

The defiant 10,000-word statement of the return to socialism was a blunt and brutal warning to the other satellites—Czechoslovakia, Bulgaria, Romania, Albania and East Germany—to be content with their lot.

The declaration was drafted in a four-day Budapest meeting of satellite leaders with Soviet Communist Party Secretary Nikita S. Khrushchev and former Premier Georgi Malenkov.

As the announcement was broadcast Russian tanks clanked into position before the modern headquarters of the secret police—the first target of the revolutionaries in their October revolt.

The nation waited tensely for reaction among the workers, for the Kadar resolution defiantly ignored or rejected all demands they have made.

The resolution pushed back the clock even beyond the somewhat faded postwar situation just before the revolution began. While it ruined Hungarian hopes for limited political freedom, it shattered Kadar's last shred of popularity.

It left Kadar dependent only on Soviet armor to remain in power in his heavily-guarded parliament building.

The Kadar government for the first time openly accused former in his heavily-guarded parliament building.

Dickson Leads in Finals of L. A. Open

By BOB MYERS
LOS ANGELES (AP) For a little boy who weighs only 125 pounds, Gardner Dickson fared a monumental task today as he led the way into the final round of the $55,000 Los Angeles Open Golf Tournament.

Parked into a spread of only five strokes were Dickson and 11 other professionals. At stake was a first-money prize of $7,000. Nearest threat to the 29-year-old leader from Panama City Beach, Fla., was a seasoned rival, Art Wall Jr. Dickson had a 54-hole score of 208 Wall 209.

Just behind were some of the greatest names in golf. Cary Middlecott, Jack Burke Jr., Tommy Bolt, Dow Finsterwald, Doug Ford and England's Ryder Cup star Harry Wedman.

Add to these names of the so-called hunger players on the circuit, Doug Higgins, Billy Maxwell, Billy Casper Jr. and Fred Hawkins and Dickson's problem is easily appreciated.

Playing the Rancho golf course, a 36-35-71 layout whose 7,131 yards was swarming with an estimated 18,200 fans yesterday, Dickson shot even par. Was he scrambling "scramble every day" he replied with a grin.

Wall moved into the target zone with a flashy 87.
Higgins 71 gave him 210. The career leader, Casper, from Chula Vista, Calif. fell back to 211 with his 75 and a tie at 211 with Ford (71) Finsterwald (68) and Westman (69).
Middlecott (71), Burke (74) and

OUT OF DOORS with Field & Stream

By AL McCLANE
Fishing Editor

Winter months in the Rocky Mountain area bring short, cold days. The sun slips behind the peaks early in the afternoon and a man can freeze his casting hand in zero temperatures.

This may not sound like ideal fishing conditions but that's the way whitfish addicts like their sport. Standing on the shore ice and drifting a bait in the black current can't be mighty exciting, especially when the fish are hitting good.

I have caught as many as 40 or 50 big whitfish in a morning, using small spinning lures, but the winter specialists do this quite regularly.

The way winter fishing works is simple. Ice forms on big western rivers for several feet out from shore but the fast moving main channel stays open. Most of the white fish are caught just under the ice edge and the problem is to lead them out, bucking and twisting then skid them into your basket.

Most whitfish weigh about a pound, but I have had them average over two pounds on some Montana rivers and that's enough weight to cause trouble. Some folks use spinning rods and others prefer fly rods, but in either case the bait is almost always a stonefly nymph, which are one to two inches long and are imbedded on small hooks, usually a No. 10 or No. 12.

The problem is to get your bait drifting freely along the bottom because whitfish feed right on the gravel. You have to use a very small sinker and a leader of about three feet long.

When the line is tight enough to feel the sinker bouncing that means the nymph has swung around and is working ahead in a natural fashion. White fish bite very gently. You'll lose plenty of baits at first, but then you learn the difference between sinker bounce and sipping fish.

Kansas and N. C. Seek to Increase Unbeaten String

By BEN OLAN
Of The Associated Press

Kansas and North Carolina, the nation's top-rated college basketball teams, will seek to increase their unbeaten streaks this week. There's little reason to believe they'll be stopped.

The Jayhawks, No. 1, can pick up their 11th victory tonight against Oklahoma and take over sole possession of the Big Seven conference lead. Both teams won their league openers Saturday night, Kansas defeated Missouri 92-69 as Will (The Stilt) Chamberlain was held to 23 points and Oklahoma with a 69-67 triumph over Kansas State.

North Carolina's Tar Heels 11-0, well rested after an eight-day layoff, will take on William and Mary tomorrow night.

Plenty of action also is on tonight in the Big Ten. Knocked off by Minnesota 91-86 Saturday Illinois will try to get back on the beam against Iowa. In other games, Wisconsin is at Indiana, Michigan at Michigan State and Purdue at Ohio State.

Indiana, Purdue, Ohio State and Northwestern won their league opener Saturday.

Kentucky, third-ranked nationally, meets Loyola of Chicago tonight hoping to improve its 9-2 record.

Most of the conference races look as if they'll go right down to the wire. Here's the way they shape up at the moment:

Atlantic Coast — North Carolina and Duke tied for the lead with 3-0.

Southeastern — Nip and tuck between Kentucky, Alabama and Tennessee.

Big Ten — A tossup. Illinois was the preseason favorite.

Big Seven — Kansas appears too strong.

Ivy — Harvard off to a quick 2-0 lead. But Columbia is given the edge.

Southwest — Southern Methodist should repeat.

Southern — West Virginia leads with 4-0. Hot Rod Hundley canned 54 points as the precessitors downed Furman 110-95 Saturday.

Skyline — Utah State in front with two victories against no defeats. Brigham Young and Wyoming next with 1-0.

Rocky Mountain — Idaho State, the preseason champ again ton with 2-0 although it shared lead with Montana State and Colorado State.

Missouri Valley — Oklahoma A&M is favored. Wichita and Tulsa also are 1-0.

Pacific Coast — UCLA has run up 29 straight conference triumphs. The Bruins have 2-0 mark, same as Washington and California.

Writers Alibi Tennessee's Bowl Loss

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) Two Knoxville sports writers say they believe Tennessee lost its will to win in the Sugar Bowl game after guard Bruce Burnham was kicked in the face by Baylor's Larry Hickman. Baylor won, 13-7.

IT WALKS—Since "perambulate" means to walk about, a Swedish inventor has come up with a perambulator that really does walk. As seen above, during demonstration in Stockholm, Vilhelm Peterson's pram has, instead of wheels, 20 metallic feet, fixed to the axle in spoke fashion. It "walks" up and down stairs and, on flat surface, the "feet" impart a rocking rhythm to the carriage, which should act like a lullaby.

Cass looked at the pretty young girl. Only 19, she seemed much older.

She was not even shocked that Marcy welcomed her mother's inability to talk. Cass had always blamed Aunt Cordy for her aloofness at the time of Marcy's marriage, her coldness to the girl when, evidently, she had badly needed her mother, a mother.

When the girls came in Alex was reading the local paper aloud to his mother. Cass took out some knitting. Marcy rocked in her mother's "platform" and listened to Alex, commenting now and then on a name in the news item.

Cordy Cass saw at once, was uneasy about something. She kept looking at the door, and then at Marcy—finally she gestured to Alex and he nodded.

"Had all she can take," he told Marcy, giving her the paper.

"But that wasn't it. Aunt Cordy patted her head, looked at Marcy's head."

After some time, Cass hit on the right thing. "She wants to know what room—where you put your hat."

"Lift out in the hall," said Marcy. "It's in the sloppy type."

Aunt Cordy did not smile. She looked at Cass, then gestured to a corner of the ceiling.

"She wants you to have the big room, dear," Cass interpreted.

Cordy nodded and smiled. Held up two fingers, and nodded again, pointing at Marcy.

Cass moistened her lips glanced at Alex and Marcy—a bit to warn them. Marcy's husband didn't come with her, Aunt Cordy said in the slow, carefully enunciated way she was learning to use with the sick woman.

"But I'll fix her up the way you want. Shall we go up now?"

Marcy glanced at the clock. It was eight thirty. "Yes," she decided. "I'll have to unpack."

The girls had already reached the stairs. "I've a guest in that room," she told the others, from the landing. "Alex said to give you your old room."

Alex went on up with the bags. He glanced down at Cass, but said nothing. Marcy picked up her topcoat, her hat, the third small bag. "Aunt Cordy needn't know a thing about it," she said softly as she joined Cass.

Her face troubled, Cass went along the upper hall to the small bedroom.

What gave her the idea that Alex would be with me tonight? asked Marcy. "I wrote that I was coming alone."

It wouldn't have been better if Powers had come with you. Or if he'd come here now, and talk out this situation."

"With Aunt Cordy!"

"Of course not. She couldn't handle a personal situation of that sort now."

"She never could," said Marcy dourly.

"But I stand somewhat responsible for you, my dear. An old-fashioned Powers might help get the lines cleared and the whole thing way more quickly than your refusal to talk about the matter will ever do."

"The ship, as you call it," Marcy assured him, "has been cleared. There's a bit of paint needed and some caulking—but once that's attended to . . ."

"All right," agreed Alex. "If you say so. But why you ever did a fool thing like marrying a complete stranger—"

"Alex," Marcy came to stand directly before him. "Haven't you ever felt like running out. Enough to do it?"

It was not so much a matter of Aunt Cordy's health improving as it was a gradual adjustment to her physical condition.

She did not need nursing, in any skilled sense. A strong back and infinite patience were the essential qualifications of her attendant.

Thus, as nurses came and departed—for various reasons—Bucky came to take charge of the sick room and the sick woman Bucky, as strong as an oak tree, and considerably darker, was everything Aunt Cordy needed or wanted.

Marcy stretched her long bare legs toward a nearby chair. "Bucky's a wonderful cook," she mused.

"Now, Marcy, how can she cook and care for Aunt Cordy too?"

Cass's face brightened. "Useless. Don't look at me!" cried Marcy. "I wouldn't beard that lion any morning!"

Cass laughed and wept inside. "Mrs. Ward," the name was spoken softly.

Cass stopped, frowning. Just within the front door stood a woman. Cass walked toward her, trying to see who it was, against the light. "Yes."

"I rang—but no one answered."

The tall woman lifted the little red basket which she was carrying. She was a strikingly beautiful young woman—tall and poised. Her quiet was arresting, and not at all forbidding. She had the most amazing blue eyes—and her skin—

"I'm Lenoire Black," said the deep, rich voice. "I brought these for Mrs. Ward." Again she lifted the basket. It contained eggs—brown and warm-looking upon a layer of cress.

"They're fresh," said the strange young woman. "I drove out into the country early this morning to get them. These first hot days, a person's sick as she is doesn't find food appealing."

How could she know thought Cass. How could she possibly know that hot, humid morning Aunt Cordy had refused to eat. And eggs—fresh, brown country eggs—

Prophecies of Fatima May Apply to Pope

By FRANK BRUTTO
VATICAN CITY (UP)—Do the prophecies of Fatima relate to Pope Pius XII?

Many here think they do. But the secret of the prophecies will not be revealed until 1960, unless Lucia dos Santos dies before then. The only survivor of the three little shepherds who reported seeing the visions at Fatima 40 years ago, she now is a 51-year-old cloistered nun at Coimbra's Carmelite convent in Portugal, known as Sister Maria.

Whether the prophecies were revealed to Sister Maria or were her own, based on her experience, has never been disclosed. Part of the prophecies were made public in 1941. But the still secret portion is known only to Sister Maria, and, possibly, to two other persons—the Bishop of Leiria, her ecclesiastical superior, and the Pope himself.

The revealed portion of Sister Maria's prophecies forecast World War II and told of a possible conversion of Russia to the Roman Catholic faith. This conversion, however, was conditioned upon a sincere return of humanity to Christian life.

"Otherwise," said the prophecy of Sister Maria, "Russia will extend its errors throughout the world, promoting wars and persecutions against the church."

The second portion of her prophecy, Sister Maria said, was not to be revealed until 1960 or on the day of her death, "if it occurred before then."

Questioned today one of Roman Catholicism's outstanding shrines to the Virgin Mary has a story now well known.

Until May 13, 1917, it was a group of huts near the village of Aljustrel, so tiny it did not show on maps of Portugal.

The Cova da Iria, where the shepherd children reported their visions of the Virgin, was a grassy slope. The children had paused to play and were building a hut when the sky suddenly darkened. They were about to run when—as they later told their story—they saw a beautiful lady in white.

Lucia, oldest of the three, found courage to ask her what they should do. The children were told to come the 13th of each month to the same spot until Oct. 13, when, they were promised, something unusual would occur. The children's story spread.

Questioned closely by public authorities they held to their story of the beautiful lady in white. They said they saw her the 13th of each month although others there saw nothing.

On Oct. 13 some 50,000 gathered on the grassy slope. Many waited throughout a rainy night. In the late afternoon, while rumbles of disbelief increased, Lucia suddenly cried out: "Look at the sun."

The rain had stopped. Thousands later affirmed that they saw the sun revolve wildly, turn blood red in color and shoot toward the horizon. From that day the story of Fatima grew.

In 1930, after careful investigation, the Portuguese episcopate proclaimed the apparition of the Cova da Iria as being "worthy of faith" and permitting the cult of Our Lady of Fatima.

Meanwhile, death came to both Giannina and Francesco Marto, the other two children who had experienced the visions. Lucia became Sister Maria Dolores.

Federico Cardinal Tedeschini, archbishop of St. Peter's Basilica, represented Pope Pius XII at Fatima's anniversary observance Oct. 13, 1951.

Cardinal Tedeschini said the Pope, walking in the Vatican gardens during the 1950 holy year, four times had experienced the vision of the sun as it had occurred at Fatima. Tedeschini's statement adds interest to what the unrevealed portion of Sister Maria's prophecy may contain.

So does one other fact. On the day that the three children announced their first vision, May 13, 1917, Pope Benedict XV was consecrating a 41-year-old monsignor bishop.

The young bishop was Eugenio Pacelli now Pope Pius XII.
